DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

1. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Claims 13 and 25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter. "USE" claims are not a statutory class of invention. Applicant is requested to either change these claims to an apparatus or a method or cancel the instant claims.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claim 11 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Nara et al (6312571).

Nara et al disclose an activated cathode comprising an electrically conductive substrate, an interlayer of a nickel oxide formed on the surface of the electrically conductive substrate and a catalyst layer containing at least one lanthanum component selected from oxides of lanthanum metals and at least one platinum component selected from platinum metals and silver and formed on the interlayer. See abstract.

The lanthanum metal can be any of the metals from atomic no. 57 to 71. See col. 4, lines 43-52.

The prior art of Nara et al anticipates the applicants instant invention as set forth above with respect to the instant claims as presented. Even though the prior art of Nara et al includes an interlayer, the claim is anticipated since "comprising" language has been used in the instant claim and therefore, this interlayer may be present since open claim language has been used and since the examiner is construing the substrate and interlayer to be the conductive carrier and therefore the catalyst is on the conductive carrier as set forth in the instant claim as presented.

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

5. Claim 11 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Nishiki (EP 0298055).

Nishiki et al disclose a cathode comprising a conductive base having a nickel surface having provided thereon at least on platinum group component selected from the group consisting of platinum group metal, platinum group oxide and platinum group hydroxide, and at least one cerium component selected from cerium, cerium oxide, and cerium hydroxide. See abstract. Part of the metallic component may be used in the form of solid particles. See page 4, lines 24-29.

The prior art of Nishiki et al anticipates the applicants instant invention as shown by way of the disclosure above with respect to the instant claim as presented.

Allowable Subject Matter

6. Claims 1-10, 12, 14-24, 26 and 27 are allowable over the prior art of record.
7. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: The prior art of record fails to teach and/or suggest an electrode catalyst of the composition set forth in claim 1 wherein an alkaline earth metal is present in solid solution with the particulate rare earth oxide that is mixed with the particulate noble metal.
